LEWIS, Printer, and late a midshipman in the navy of the United States, o rob him of a large sum of money, thro' he agency of a second person, which person as to procure a good horse, a genteel suit of lothes, and new saddle bags—put his clothes n them, lace and lock them, and cut a slit in em under the flap large enough to run his m in; then come to his lodgings in Alexandia, and he would shew him where a rich Tavern-Keeper lived, who was daily in the receipt of a great deal of money, that he must ut up there and deliver his saddle-bags to the andlord, and the next day call for his bags nd search for his pocket-book, and charge the andlord with robbing him of it—and that he the said Lewis would come in at the same ime and ask for the fifteen hundred dollars he promised to lend him, and that he should then elare he had been robbed of three thousand dollars, and that he (Lewis) would declare and make oath, that at his lodgings he saw him count three thousand dollars, put them into his pocket-book and saddle-bags and take them o the tavern, and as the Tavern-Keeper had the money or could easily procure it he would pay it, or, if he did not it could be recovered by law." LITTLE RIVER TURNPIKE ROAD.

As the completion of the Little River Turnpike Road is an object of primary importance to the people of Alexandria, and the country connected with it in commerce, the President and Directors deem it their duty to submit to the public the following statement of what has been effected, and what remains to be done to secure the accomplishment of this great work of public utility:—

THE first ten miles of the road having been paved, was submitted to the view of commissioners, agreeably to the terms of the LAW, who having approved the same, the governor of Virginia authorised the erection of turnpike gates thereon. Two gates have accordingly been erected, and tolls collected for some weeks past. In addition to this, the road has been opened, preparatory to paving, up to the Gum Spring road, about a mile from the Gum Spring.

THE total expenditure in the execution of the aforementioned work has been, Dollars, 48,320

Of which sum there has been paid for lands over which the road passes, and expences of condemnation, - - - - - - - - - - 2,467
For opening and clearing the road above the part completed, say, - - - 2,500
For repairs of paved part of the road previous to the establishment of the gates, - - 1,000
For a machine for repairing road, - - - - - - - 250
For ploughs and tools now on hand, - - - - - - - 150

6,367

The balance, 36,953 dollars, is, therefore, the cost of the ten miles of pavement, including the expence of a bridge built over Accotinck run, which sum is equal to 3698 dollars 30 cents per mile. It is here to be remarked, that the road already made passes over ground much more difficult and hilly than that which remains to be made; from which very considerable expences were incurred beyond what will be necessary in levelling any equal distance of the remainder of the road; the whole expence of making which cannot (it is believed) hereafter exceed the average cost of 2500 to 3000 dollars per mile. This opinion is further strengthened by the consideration that in the commencement of the work it was a business entirely new to all concerned in conducting it, but that experience has since greatly improved their skill and information upon the subject. The amount of the money for the shares subscribed having been thus expended, a new subscription must necessarily be opened immediately, when it is expected that the public spirit of the inhabitants of Alexandria, and of the counties westward thereof, will give an impulse to the work, that will produce a speedy accomplishment of this most desirable object. The amount of money received at the gates since their erection, fully warrants the opinion, that the stock, under all the present disadvantages attending the road, will produce a profit of ten per cent. per anuum to the holder, and will, at a period not very distant, give an interest of fifteen per cent. which is the limitation to the profits fixed by law. This well founded expectation of profit will alone be a sufficient inducement to the monied man to invest his capital in the stock; but when, in addition to this, the advantages to be expected from the road are duly appreciated by the agriculturalists who take their produce to Alexandria, and the merchants and tradesmen resident therein, assuredly every member of the community will feel it his interest and his duty to give the subscription his prompt and liberal aid.

THE people of Alexandria are not ignorant of the great efforts which the BALTIMOREANS are making, by means of turnpike roads, to attract to THEIR city, the whole trade of the back country; nor can any thing be more apparent, than that those efforts can be alone counteracted by similar exertions on the part of the ALEXANDRIANS.—The appeal to the landholder must be equally effectual, when he reflects on all the important advantages of an easy intercourse with his market town; and that the increased price of the produce of his lands will keep pace with the prosperity of the town, and that the price of the lands themselves will be consequently augmented far beyond the most sanguine expectations of any man unacquainted with the effect of those improvements in other parts of the United States.

LEVIN POWELL, President.

NEW YORK, December 6.

Foreign News.

By the ship Walker, from Liverpool, we have received London papers to the evening of the 11th of October—they afford the following articles:

LONDON, Sept. 11.

Baron Jacobi arrived in town last night; he came from Hamburgh in the Diana packet, which has been waiting in the Elbe to receive him.

There is a long account in an article from Naples of an attack by the French on the Loyalists, who had posted and entrenched themselves at Camarotta, in the province of Salerno. The account confesses that they made a tremendous discharge against the French, though, in the end, the latter were succeseful. This article from Naples, though it abundantly proves the disturbed state of the Neapolitan territories, does not enable us to confirm the report of another victory having been gained by us. But we are still of opinion the report will be found correct. We have no doubt the enemy will evacuate Naples soon after the breaking out of the war in Germany. King Joseph has, for some time, we believe, been weary of his kingly dignity.

A short time before our paper was put to press, we received a Leyden paper of of Wednesday last, the 7th inst. The accounts from Mentz are of the 29th ult.—from Wesel of the 1st instant, and from Brussels of the 3d. They are all full of the activity of the French preparations. The troops which were to have been encamped at Ziest have proceeded by forced marches to the environs of Wesel, where they are to be encamped. King Louis set off early last Monday morning for the army, in consequence of a letter from Bonaparte. Before he set off, he convoked a meeting of their high mightinesses; and the minister of the interior made several communications to them, which have not transpired, but which are supposed to relate to the present posture of affairs.

The four German regiments, who have been so long on ship-board at Portsmouth, have been ordered to disembark, & march to Winchester.

In the beginning of June, Osman Bey Bordessi, Ibrahim Bey, and the rest of their party, were in possession of all Upper Egypt. Elsi Bey had the Saimne, and the whole of the left bank of the Nile, from Saccara to the neighborhood of Rosetta. He had besieged Dananour, then retired, and again returned to the siege. His Arabs advanced to the cut made by the English between the Lakes of Aboukir and Mareotis, and stopped all supplies of provisions for Alexandria, till the governor of that place was obliged to make a treaty with Elfi, by which a free communication took place between the camp and the town. Elfi was supplied with clothing and every thing he wanted. The Pacha Mohammed Alias at Cairo; his Albanians are in a state of mutiny: he cannot pay them; they therefore plunder every thing.

The following energetic speech was lately addressed by the Prussian general Blucher, to the army under his command:

"COMRADES—we shall probably have war, but do not imagine that the king will carry on an unjust one. Hitherto he has done all to prevent the effusion of human blood; but now he is forced to take up arms, because France demands part of the dominions over which he is king. Brethren, I need not tell you that you are fighting for the honor of your king, the welfare of your country, and in defence of your own property; and who would not do it cheerfully. I know your former bravery, I know many among you who have fought with me in former wars. Therefore comrades, here is my had hand my heart—follow my example and that of your predecessors, and if we thus fight, success will attend us—we shall conquer—because there is a God over us who is just and protects the innocent. Let us fight like brothers, let us share the laurels in common."

The troops exclaimed with one voice: "Yes! we follow you"

On the 27th of August, at ten in the morning, an English ship of war appeared in the water of Majari, and was soon after joined by a ship of the line, four sloops and two boats. On board one of these vessels, we are told, was the famous Crescenzio Antuori, a noted brigand, and who hoisted the ancient royal colors. They were afterwards joined by four more sloops. A descent was, no doubt, the enemy's object; but the commandant of the Civic guard, and a captain of the light infantry, who were present, prevented this by getting their troops under arms without delay and posting them at the most important stations, and which the enemy seeing, thought proper to retire.

DOVER, October 10.

I have just heard by a gentleman who was in the attack the night before last on Boulogne, that we sent in 40 boats, who threw in the new invented rockets; they set fire to the town in several places, and also, it is added, to several of the gunboats; our brave fellows retreated without a man being hurt.

The enemy, it is said, had no expectation of an attack. The boats were not seen till they were well in. The greatest confusion prevailed as soon as the first discharge took place. It seemed to be a storm of fire descending from the clouds. There was no method of avoiding the rockets, nor could they be immediately extinguished. Whatever they touched, masts, cordage, sails, or wooden houses, was instantly in a blaze.

NAPLES, Sept. 12.

We have received intelligence from Palermo of the 20th ultimo. The court was then extremely uneasy, in consequence of the ill success of its late attempts to raise the kingdom of Naples in its favor; being now convinced it will no more be able to kindle the flame of revolt. The heads of the masse, sent upon this business, and who had made such great promises, had returned to Sicily, there to seek an asylum and a cover from the bayonets of the French. King Ferdinand thinks of nothing but hunting and fishing, occupations which console him for his losses. In the mean while a courier has arrived from London, which has occasioned an extraordinary sitting of the council; upon the breaking up of which the symptoms of despair were not equivocal. Different reports have been circulated through the city, but that which receives the most credit is, that the cabinet of St. James has declared to Caroline, that it continues the negociations for peace, and that it will probably very soon effect its desired object; that peace was necessary to England; and that, in order to obtain it, England would be obliged to abandon some of its pretensions. From that moment, it is said, the court has been making preparations for its departure. The English have not more than 8000 troops; those under Ferdinand do not amount to 6000. Many of them long to return to their homes, and the naval force is still more contemptible.

A detachment that had formed a part of the garrison of Gaeta, and of his majesty king Ferdinand's Palatine guard, had the temerity to join a wretched horde of rebels upon the coast of Palinura, and that in contempt of the capitulation. They had at their head Guariglia, a chief of one of the masses. As a rallying point, they fixed upon Camarotta, in the province of Salerno; their retreat towards the sea was easy from this place, and there they had taken great pains to ietrench themselves.

This village is situated on an eminence, three miles of which are inclosed by a precipice four hundred feet high. One side only is open; and to defend it, they had raised a wall with towers and embrasures, and seven pieces of cannon.

Gen. Lamarque collected all the troops under his orders, at Ceuvala; and on September 1st, he marched to Camarota; the rain fell in torrents; but in spite of the weather, the general remarked that the wall, to the left of the village, did not exceed seven or eight feet in height. Thither he dispatched Colonel Dufour, while Colonel Grenz moved towards the right, and the chief de battalion, M. Captaine, approached only gate that was not walled up. The chief de battalion Lucas, commanded the advanced guard, which was preceded by the sappers, who were ordered to destroy the gate with their axes—Lastly, to cut the rebels off from every possibility of retreating, two detachments shewed, one upon the direct road, and the other near a wood. The rebels made a terrible discharge, which the French were unable to return, in consequence of the rain—Nothing however could restrain the French who arrived close under the wall. The grenadier Turrenac, a member of the Legion of Honor, got up to a window, from whence he jumped into the place: he was followed by the grenadier Voisoo, of the 5th reg.: at the same time Pictor a corporal in the 5th regiment, entered it another way. The gates were by that time destroyed by the sappers, and the troops entered Camarotta in good order. At the sight of the French the rebels fled in a dastardly manner. Some of them attempted to save themselves by jumping off the wall, and flying towards the sea where the vessels from Sicily were waiting for them; but M. Brigges aid-de-camp to general Lamarque, overtook the rebels and got possession of two barques which he sunk.

The banditti who had taken refuge on this side were either killed or drowned.

We had only 11 wounded including captain Montchoist lieutenant Varnier & the sub-lieutenants Panachon and De May. Camarotta, which the rebels call Little Gaeta, is in our hands as are also the seven pieces of cannon which defended it.

The enemy is still at Capri where there is a corps of about three hundred men mostly insurgents. The island of Tremita, though long beseiged by the English remains in our hands. A body of four hundred Italians, and four barks with provisions, lately got in there.——The bad weather frequently obliges the English to withdraw.

The relief of Tremita has done much honor to Cosso, who conducted it, notwithstanding his vessels were pursued and several times fired on by the English.

The famous Clement d'Angelis, one of the chiefs of the insurrection at Cassa Harcinana, escaped from the hands of justice while they were removing him from Castellona to Naples; but divine justice again overtook him; he was seized at Arienta, and immediately condemned by the military commission at Naples. We hope the severity of the laws, and his majesty's clemency, will finally open the eyes of these deluded people. However they continue in their secret practices, and we confess with regret that a number of respectable persons are implicated. A conspiracy has just been discovered at Lecce, which had its focus at Tarenta, and which extended through the neighboring countries as far as Gallipoli. This conspiracy had a number of chiefs who have been arrested, and among others M. Joseph de la Croce, and the Governor Emmanuel Impoliti. Notwithstanding the respect due to their quality they have been committed to prison. These arrests have occasioned the failure of every attempt, and the English seeing their accomplices in prison have retired with precipitation.

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12.

It is stated in a letter from Boston, that the grand jury had been sitting four days in the case of Mr. Selfridge, charged with the murder of Mr. Austin, and had at length found a bill for man-slaughter.

In the gale of Tuesday night the 2d instant, the ship Two Friends, captain Williams, from Havana to Baltimore, with a valuable cargo of sugars, parted her anchors, and went ashore on Sewell's Point. Same night a brig from New York bound to Baltimore, went ashore. We are told they will be got off without material damage.

Capt. Williams says, that he was boarded in the bay by captain Warner, of ship Peggy, 59 days from Amsterdam, bound to Baltimore, who told him in common conversation, that accounts were received there at the time of his sailing, of an engagement having taken place between the Prussians and French, in which the former were victorious, after having made 3000 prisoners!

No important questions have yet appeared before the legislature. Mr. Gholson has introduced a motion to repeal the law of the last session prohibiting the introduction of slaves from our sister states. The legislature have most properly set their faces against the lottery system; by the immediate rejection of a petition which was presented for the establishment of a lottery.

On Saturday last the legislature appointed Lewis Harvie, esq. (delegate from Richmond) to supply the vacancy in the executive council, occasioned by the death of Lyne Shackelford:

The votes stood for Lewis Harvie	96
Gervas Storrs	46
George W. Smith	43

On the same day John Hungerford, esq. of the senate, was elected brigadier general of the 14th brigade, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of general Henry Young.

The United States of America, by a policy unknown to the old world, buy countries which they might conquer—and Bonaparte, we may subjoin, sells countries which he has not conquered: he sells the bear's skin before it is caught, but with little more cunning than the fellow in the fable, he makes it no part of his bargain that he shall catch the bear, that being a pleasure and a privilege which he declines in favor of the purchaser himself.

[London pap.]

LORD LAUDERDALE RETURNED.

We understand that a vessel, belonging to Newburyport, has arrived at Salem, from Alicant, in 35 days, the captain of which informs, that the day before he sailed, which was on the 25th of October, the American consul read him a letter, which he had just received from Paris by post, stating that lord Lauderdale left Paris on the 13th and had proceeded directly for London. Captain Thurlow fell in with an English squadron, by one of which he was boarded and informed that the account was true, agreeing perfectly as to date, and adding that he arrived in England on the 16th. We therefore presume it is no longer a question as to the fact, these accounts confirming that of captain Gilchrist.

At this important event, we do not hesitate to express a high degree of satisfaction. Whether the blustering of the king of Prussia end in a humiliating tete a tete with Bonaparte, and in the quiet surrender of a part of his empire and the whole of his independence, or not, it appears to be decided that Great Britain yet presents an insurmountable barrier against the power of France.

It would be base and hypocritical canting in us, to pretend to regret at this prospect of affairs. We have seen American publications which deprecate the continuance of war between those great powers, and represent it as inhumanity to indulge a contrary sentiment. Without any disposition to question the sincerity or benevolent intestions of those who think thus, we not only avow, but hold ourselves justifiable in avowing a satisfaction at the continuance of war, on every principle both of policy and humanity. We would not propose as the cause of our opinion, the commercial advantages to be enjoyed by us as neutrals, in a time of war, which would cease with peace, for two reasons. That motive ought never to prevail against sympathy for the distressing consequences of national conflicts in a moral point of view; and besides, the continuance and extent of these advantages, we have reason to deem precarious.

But we contemplate the event on a large scale. A regard to the liberties of mankind, and a well grounded solicitude for our own in particular: these are motives which no man need blush to profess; these ought to operate as powerful considerations with every philanthropist and good citizen.

What are treaties of peace with Bonaparte? Who will pretend that his unbounded and insatiable views are to be governed by the "Liliputian ties" of national compact. In the short interval of peace which Europe lately enjoyed, were not the insidious manœuvres of Bonaparte fixing fetters on millions, who durst not resist their own ruin? Should he go on without opposition and swell his power, until the last bulwark, Great Britain be no longer equal to the contest, or shall she, while she is able, both defend herself and fight the battles of the civilized world? This is the point which the moralist, the honest friend to liberty must decide. Then comes a second consideration, not so liberal, but surely natural, commendable, and no less interesting. Have we not seen, too plain to be misunderstood, schemes which were maturing to render a contest with our own country inevitable? We presume there is not a man, who has paid any attention to the external relations of this country, who is not persuaded that in six months after the ratification of peace in Europe, we should have sacrificed our independence at the shrine of Bonaparte's ambition and avarice, or have been involved in a struggle with France and Spain. The preliminaries of war were fixed.

And are we certain of our independence, now that England resists? This is a serious question, which subjects the honest mind to painful and humiliating reflections. No—without a change in our public councils, as a nation we still must sink. But we shall sink slower, by our own weight, than if the weight of Bonaparte's power were added. Therefore relying on that Providence which can preserve nations prone to destruction, we rejoice that our day of trouble has not yet arrived: that we may yet become wise, acquit ourselves like men, and prove ourselves worthy of the freedom and the blessings we enjoy.

IN this paper, under the head of "CAUTION" the Widow of the late R. Lee, jun. has made an insidious attempt to injure the reputation which the medicines prepared by R. Lee and Son have so justly acquired by their efficacy, as have been certified by the most respectable citizens of different sections of the United States.

She states as a fact that the only and original recipes are in her possession," and that "we, both mechanics (horrible!) were employed in the laboratory of the deceased"—and, "that within a few months we have commenced making imitations of the widow's medicines,"

As far as relates to the original recipes, we will only refer the reader to the affidavits of Richard Lee, senior, and of Mr. Hanna, of the house of Warner and Hanna, their former agents in Baltimore, which are hereunto annexed. Our being mechanics has nothing to do with the matter in dispute; we only contend that our medicines are genuine and prepared from the original recipes of R. Lee, junior.

She says we have within a "few months commenced making imitations."——No, we have had a practical knowledge of the business for upwards of seven years, and the public are capable of judging of that time and the trifling deviation from truth made by Hannah, when she so generously informs the public of a few months experience.

We are accused of having solicited her agents to take our compositions for sale. To say the least this assertion is of the same stamp with that wherein she states "she had taken the agency from Warner and Hanna." The fact is that her former agents well knew that our preparations were genuine; they therefore relinquished the agency and recommended Mr. James Hanna, her present agent, as a fit person to continue the sale of her medicines in Baltimore. The Widow admits that the medicines have been wrapt and sealed, &c. by us, under the directions of her husband, and supposes we remember the drugs, but denies our knowledge of the necessary proportions, and that her husband was so extremely tenacious of the recipes, that he kept them locked up in his private desk.—It is an absolute fact that he never had such an article as a private desk on the premises—but on the contrary they were kept in a common till or drawer, to which we had as free access as R. Lee, jun. himself.

All the medicines prepared by R. Lee and Son, bear their own names, for the purpose of distinguishing them from any others that may be offered for sale by any other person.—Let the public make but one experiment with our genuine medicines and those prepared by her minions, and we are confident the result will be in favor of those bearing the signature of Richard Lee and Son.

City of Baltimore.

Personally appeared before me the subscriber, one of the justices of the peace of Baltimore county, Richard Lee, senior, who being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that the papers now in the possession of Richard Lee, senior, are receipts given under him by Richard Lee jun. for the purpose of preparing different kinds of medicines, which were sold under the names of Hamilton, Hahn, &c. &c.

RICHARD LEE, Sen'r.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, the subscriber.

EDWARD WOODYEAR.

At the same time appeared before me, Andrew Hanna, of the house of Warner and Hanna, and being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that the above mentioned manuscripts are in the hand writing of the late Richard Lee, jun,

ANDREW HANNA.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, the subscriber.

EDWARD WOODYEAR.

December 4.

On application to me by Michael Lee, I have deemed proper in justice to Richard Lee and Son, to give the following testimony.

During the sickness of 1800, Richard Lee, jun. deceased, rented a part of my front dwelling with a back building, for the use of his brother Michael Lee, and in which he was to prepare medicines. While he resided at my house, I had free access to the building, to which I found the said Michael Lee constantly at work, weighing drugs and preparing medicines of different kinds. I never saw Richard Lee, jun do any thing belonging to the business, either in giving directions or any other matter belonging thereto—In fact Michael Lee appeared to attentive, that his brother did not conceive it necessary.

Given under my hand, this 12th day of Sept. 1806.

JOHN ALLEN.

I hereby certify, that Richard Lee jun. deceased, rented a dwelling and store from me in Baltimore street, between Frederick and Gay streets, which he occupied upwards of two years. I had workmen employed at said house and the one adjoining for several months, which required my presence there repeatedly throughout the day. I have sat in Richard Lee, jun's laboratory and store, for several hours at a time, while Richard Lee, jun. and Michael Lee his son, were employed in weighing out drugs, and mixing and compounding various kinds of medicines—at other times I have seen them distilling, filling and sealing phials with different medicines, and there was no other person employed in preparing any for the above person. I never to the best of my recollection, saw Richard Lee jun. deceased, interfere with the business in any respect.

Given under my hand, this 15th day of Sept. 1806.

PUBLIC SALE.

PURSUANT to a decree of the circuit court of the United States for the fifth circuit and district of Virginia, will be sold at public auction on the 7th day of January next, at the town of Occaquan in the county of Prince William, about forty likely Virginia born Slaves, consisting of men, women, and children, among which, are a number of boys and girls, of from 8 to 15 years of age. These slaves have been brought up in the neighborhood of Occaquan, and have for some years past been under the management of the late James Lawson dec'd.—and have been heretofore commonly called Lawson's slaves—They will be sold for cash.

Under the same decree, will also be sold, at public auction, on the 8th day of January next, at the same place, sundry Tracts of Land lying in the counties of Fairfax & Prince William, formerly mortgaged by John Semple to the said James Lawson, deceased.—These tracts of land are situated in the neighborhood of the town of Occoquan, and some of them bind upon the Occoquan river. They are well known in that neighborhood by the name of Lawson's Land, and could be shewn by most of the landholders in that part of the country. Those who may be inclined to become purchasers of these lands, may obtain accurate information of the situation and contents of the tracts by applying to Mr. Robert Ratcliffe, of Fairfax county, who hath lately made surveys of the greater part of them.—The lands will be sold in tracts or divided so as to accommodate purchasers, and this will be arranged on the day of sale. The terms of sale will be, one fourth part of the purchase money to be paid in one year from the day of sale, and the payment to be secured by bond with approved security—the other three-fourths in three equal annual installments; the payment of the first of these installments commencing at the end of two years from the day of sale, and to be secured by the bonds of the purchaser. A mortgage will also be required upon the lands purchased, to secure the payments of the whole of the purchase money.—Deeds will be made by the Commissioners upon securing the payments in the manner above mentioned.

One or more of the commissioners will attend at Occaquan, with Mr. Robert Radcliffe the surveyor, on the 5th and 6th of January next, for the purpose of giving to persons inclined to purchase those lands such information as may be in their power touching the title, situation, and boundaries of the differennt tracts.

VALUABLE LANDS,

To be Sold very Cheap.

I WISH to sell my Mill Tract of Land, situate on Back-Lick and Indian-Runs, about six miles from the town of Alexandria; containing about eleven hundred acres. On this tract are two plantations besides the mill farm—on the latter there is a very good mill, in which are one pair of burr, and one pair of cullen stones, with elevators, &c. complete for merchant work—a distillery convenient to the mill, with four stills and every necessary utensil in complete order—a dwelling-house, kitchen, barn, with stables under it to accommodate 20 stalls, with every other out house requisite on a farm—a very good garden, an orchard of about 2500 trees of the choicest fruits this country can afford. There is about 300 or 400 acres of the tract cleared, the remainder in woods and a great part of it heavily timbered; about 30 or 40 acres of meadow, and nearly 300 acres more may be made on the bottoms adjoining the two runs.

ALSO,

One other tract of one hundred acres, about two miles from Alexandria, part of the Cliesh Tract, and adjoining the lands of Messieurs John C. Herbert, Robert Patton, and John Richter, the Mount-Vernon road running through it. This tract is mostly in woods, and conveniently situated for country seats. If these lands should be sold at private sale, (which I would prefer) I will take in payment, if more convenient to the purchasers, stock of any of the banks from Richmond to New-York, or any kind of stock of the United States.

If they are not sold before Friday the first day of May next, the Mill Tract will, on that day, be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder—and on the following day the Cliesh Lands will be sold in like manner. The Mill Tract will be divided into three or four farms and sold subject to a lease of four and an half years from the first day of July last. The Cliesh Tract will be divided into lots of 10 or 20 acres each. If sold at public auction the terms will be made known on the days of sale.
